

1st December 2017

There are three Mumbais

First, we have the Mumbai of a man or woman who was born here, who takes the city for granted and accepts its size and turbulence as natural & inevitable.

Second, there is the Mumbai of the daily commuter- the city that accepts thousands of workers from all satellite cities each day via the lifeline of locals, BEST, "shared taxi" and now the metro as well.

Third, there is the Mumbai of a person who was born somewhere else and came to Mumbai in quest of something.

Of the 3 trembling cities, the greatest is the last- the city of final destination, the city that is a goal. It is this third city that accounts for Mumbai's disposition, its poetical imperfections, its dedication to finance, service and nation building.

The commuters give this city its restlessness and sense of urgency. The old timers give it solidity and continuity but the settlers give it passion. And whether it is a daily wage earner from Jharkhand coming to the city as an unskilled labourer on a construction site or Marwadi family from Rajasthan coming to set up a small trading enterprise or a young ambitious young woman arriving from a small town in Haryana to escape the indignity of being observed by her neighbours or a young writer aspiring to break into the burgeoning film industry, it makes no difference. Each embraces Mumbai with the intense excitement of first love, each absorbs Mumbai with the fresh eyes of an adventurer, each embraces the imperfections of the city while keeping his/her eyes on the goal with the dream of making it big in the city of dreams.

Legal Information and Disclosures

This memo has been compiled in good faith by Breit Consulting Services ("Breit"). However, no representation is made as to the completeness or accuracy of the information it contains. In particular, you should be aware that this information may be incomplete, may contain errors or may have become out of date. Breit makes no commitment, and disclaims any duty, to update any of those reports. Breit reserves the right to add, modify or delete any information on this website at any time. Certain information contained herein is based on or derived from information provided by independent third-party sources which Breit believes are reliable; however, it cannot guarantee the accuracy of such information. Further, Breit makes no representation, and it should not be assumed, that it solicits investment in any stocks/ bonds or financial instruments connected with sectors/ companies mentioned on the website or its contents. Breit does not claim to be registered with SEC, SEBI or any regulatory body connected to capital markets. This website is being made available for educational purposes only and should not be used for any other purpose. Reproduction or distribution of any materials obtained on this website or linking to this website without written permission is prohibited. Any enquiries pertaining to this memorandum should be emailed to breitconsultingservices@gmail.com.